Investments in health systems could prevent

97 million premature deaths by 2030

World Health Organization